

Calling On Communities to Enable Life

Supported by Birmingham City Council Public Health, Common Unity are excited to announce the launch of the Community Connector Suicide Prevention Programme.

The aim of the programme is to better enable communities to tackle suicide and impact of suicide head on in our communities. Suicide does not discriminate affecting the lives of thousands of people across our communities.

So, Common-Unity are reaching out to local community organisations that work alongside Black African, Black Caribbean, Indian Pakistani, Bangladeshi, Polish and East European and Chinese Communities to engage with this opportunity.

This programme will begin with providing WISE STEPS Gatekeeper Training to community members and community-based organisations in Birmingham with the longer-term aim of community representatives rolling out learning to their respective communities.
